Brad Boyer and Ken Kujawa.

Boyer, KRES’s sports director for the last 15 years, along by-play for football, while commentary is provided by Kujawa, a 25-year veteran, handles the play Pero for his play-by-play of a triple overtime elite eight game in 1999.
Quarterbacks
There is no doubt that Czeschin’s time has come. He demonstrated a stronger than ever arm in the spring and has a 100.0 efficiency rating in 15 career games, completing 27 of 48 passes for 306 yards and a touchdown since 2000.

Redshirt freshman Grant Norland is next in line, while true freshmen Jonathan Duffy and Jim DuPage will likely redshirt.

“I think Jake has tremendous potential and plenty of experience,” Ware said. “He has shown in practice and game situations the ability to be very effective in running our offense.

“Grant made huge strides in the spring and is beginning to learn the nuances of our offense. I see him developing into a fine quarterback,” Ware continued.

“I’m excited about both of the young quarterbacks too. If one or both step up in the preseason, they could forgo a redshirt.”

Wide Receivers
With the loss of three of the most prolific receivers in school history, a young crew has their job cut out for them.

“I think what we lack in experience, we make up for in talent,” Coach Ware said. “I expect good things out of them.”

Perhaps the biggest shoes to fill will be at the slot position where Andrew Blakley left his mark as the league’s all-time receiving leader. The job will fall to sophomore James Walton who came on strong late in the 2002 campaign and has the size and speed that could make him a pro-prospect down the road. Redshirt freshman James Perry and newcomer Vance Schuring are slated for the slot role as well. Perry has impressed the coaches as a redshirt and will spell Walton, if not challenge for the starting role. Schuring is one of several newcomers who has the potential to see action in his first season on the college gridiron.

Junior J.D. McCloskey will take over the flanker role after seeing action behind Geoff Jensen in 10 games last year. McCloskey seems to have claimed the full-time job after making some key late season catches and enjoying a good spring outing. However he will be pushed by senior Colin Shaw who has 18 receptions for 255 yards and four touchdowns over the last three years. Incoming freshman Ryan Bonner is also slated to play at flanker as one of a hand full of newcomers that may see time this year.

Freshman Richard Mayson seems to have a lock on split end duties. He made strides as a redshirt last year and provides another excellent target at 6-2. His help will come from newcomers Ross Alisiani and Aaron Lowe. Look for one or both to play this year, if not in the redshirt pool.

Running Backs
The ‘Dogs have been utilizing a one-back set for several years now, but have a flurry of running backs to choose from this season.

“I feel good about the running backs,” Ware said. “We’re young but have more talent than in the last several years.”

Senior Marc Heinecke is the top returning rusher on the team, coming in fourth last year with 26 carries for 106 yards. However, he missed the spring with wrestling and an injury, leaving sophomore Jerard LeVerston in control of his own destiny as the No. 1 back heading into the season. Offensive scout team player of the year A.J. Eads is also in the running and is sure to see action. Schuring could also get some reps among the running backs, along with his job as a slot receiver. Newcomer Cody Carney will also vie for playing time among the backs, if not redshirted.

Offensive Linemen
The trenches are just about the only place on offense where the ‘Dogs have any starters returning, and the front line will need to step up and provide protection for a young quarterback and new receivers. Fortunately, the group has three-fifths of its components back that helped the team finish among the top 20 teams in NCAA Division II with 419.4 yards of total offense a game.

“The offensive line will be one of the strengths of our offense,” Ware said. “If guys come into their own, we have a chance to be as solid as ever.”

The left side of the line is intact with seniors Eric Stewart and Greg Klipsch at the tackle and guard spots, respectively.

Incoming tackles Nick McKnight and Eric Minturn and redshirt freshman Mike Shelden will vie for the job of Stewart’s backup at tackle. Sophomore Chris Martinek, who played in eight games a year ago, and redshirt freshman Quinn Sullivan are the men behind Klipsch at guard.

The right side of the O-line will be led by returning starter Craig Knoth at the guard spot. Knoth should have ample relief in sopho- more Rusty Drewing who played in half the last year’s game as a reserve. True freshman

Mike Devine is slated as the No. 3 guard. Right tackle duties look to fall to junior Rusty Wood who has the size (6-5, 268) to be extremely effective, and who has bided his time behind some veterans. Look for sophomore Roland Reeves to challenge for the job as well. Despite playing in just five games last year, Reeves came on strong in the spring and could fill in nicely as a starter too. Sophomore Mike Szpira is also in the hunt for time at right tackle, while newcomer Pat Murray will probably have to climb the mountain of upperclassmen to prevent being redshirted.

Tight ends

Junior A.J. Weber is the only returning starter at a skill position on offense. He had 13 catches for 102 yards a year ago and will serve as the team's long and short snapper in the coming campaign. "His experience should serve him well," Ware indicated. "A.J. had an excellent spring and I expect a big year out of him."

Redshirt freshmen Cole Voigt and Steve Holman will likely see time in double tight-end sets and as backups, while Joe Hassler and Michael Herbst will probably get acquainted with the ‘Dogs’ offense as redshirts this year.

Keith Brigman and Keith Painter, both are sophomores who have game experience under their belts, as well as the ability to be effective. The job of nose will fall to Beau Nelson. He is one of the most powerful players on the team who could be a force to reckon with if he stays healthy. Junior Joel Van Maaren will devote all of his time to the defense this year after serving time on both lines last year. His versatility gives him an edge in garnering playing time and could keep redshirt freshman Justin Smith waiting in the wings a little longer.

Junior Ted Guisinger will retain his starting job at tackle and is the top returning tackle on the defensive line. Guisinger’s relief should come in the form of junior Nick West who made three starts on the D-line in 2002, but missed the spring with an injury. Sophomore Mark Standage is also an option at tackle, while redshirt Josh Terrian is slated as the No. 2 tackle in the preseason after impressing the coaches last spring.

Defensive ends

Yehyawi really came into his own last year, garnering all-MIAA status by the year’s end as an inside linebacker. He was fourth on the team in tackles and made seven tackles for losses along with two interceptions as a reliable performer for the Bulldogs. Junior Mike Mowen is slated as Yehyawi’s backup and junior Derek Hobbs, a transfer from Scottsdale (Ariz.) Community College last January, give great depth to the Mike linebacker. Mowen has been well seasoned in 21 career games so far, as a linebacker and as a valuable special teams player. Newcomer Josh Lucas is also an option, as is junior Aaron Speropoulos who is back on the team after a year’s absence.

The Will linebacker job was laid claim to by junior Dominick Scalise in the spring. Scalise has also played in nearly every game over the last two years, serving as Yehyawi’s backup last year. He will be pushed by redshirt freshman Darryl Reddick and sophomore Zach Rotello, who is coming off of an injury. Incoming freshmen James Thabateau and Justin Beier provide additional depth.

"Yehyawi could move up the chain and be one of the better linebackers in the conference," Ware said. "Scalise has improved each year too, and should come into his own this year. Hobbs, Mowen and Reddick all showed well in the spring too and will compete for playing time.” Ware indicated. "Rotello made a smooth transition after an injury last year, and showed that his athleticism will help us have a better linebacker corps.”

defensive backs

Kent, appropriately, will serve as the secondary’s anchor man in the ‘Dogs’ 4-2-5 defensive scheme. He has literally been an anchor on defense for his entire career, starting with his freshman year when he was named the team’s defensive scout team player of the year. Since then he has become a two-time all-MIAA athlete, picking up second-team honors as a sophomore. Redshirted freshmen Larry Giglio and Andrew Pitts are in line next for the job, while Josh Kilcrease is the newcomer at the position. Wilson returns as the strong safety after an all-MIAA caliber year as a sophomore last year. Senior Billy Bundy made some key plays on defense last season too, including a touchdown on a blocked punt return, and will push Wilson for time on the field. Redshirt freshman Adam Neubauer and incoming freshman Darnell Williams round out the group behind Wilson.

The free safety vacancy goes to sophomore Marcus Yakeley, one of two true freshman to play in 2002. Yakeley was also utilized on special teams and has the athletic ability to make himself an integral part of Truman’s secondary. Junior Austin Hills has battled injuries, but should be back in action as backup for Yakeley. Senior Matt Marble did well in the spring at the left corner and is slated for the starting job. He has played a backup role in the defensive backfield, but made strides in game situations last year and performed well in the spring. However, he will be pushed for the starting job by sophomore Jason Douglass who made a name for himself as a true freshman last year when he returned two kickoffs for touchdowns against Pittsburg State. Douglass will return both kicks and punts this year. Chandler Terry is the newcomer at cornerback, but has the talent to play in his first collegiate season as well.

Senior Shaun Lowery is the lock corner again after starting eight games in 2002 and six games in 2001. Lowery’s experience makes the ‘Dogs’ backfield, the most game-savy group on the field for Truman. Redshirted freshmen Josh Mayson and Walter Washington add great size and depth on the lock side. Incoming freshman Raphael Stoval will fill in behind Lowery and the others. He is a Truman legacy, the son of former Truman defensive back Gerald Stoval.

“We have some experienced guys who could make us one of the better secondaries in the league," Ware said. “Marcus Yakeley got valuable experience as a freshman and I expect big things from him this year." "Derek Kent could be one of the best defensive players in league," Ware continued. "He has been a leader throughout his career and I expect nothing less from him this season."
2003 Season Preview

Kickers & Punters
Sophomore Mark Kamphoefner inherits the duties of kicker and punter after the departure of all-MIAA performer Austin Lepper. Kamphoefner averaged 31.5 yards on two punts a year ago, but has yet to attempt a college field goal. Redshirted freshman Brad Johnson will also help.

“Mark has an extremely strong leg,” Ware said. “If he improves his consistency and accuracy, he could be great kicker for us.”

The Schedule
The Bulldogs will again have a tough row to hoe with five preseason top 25 NCAA Division II teams on the slate, as well as Division I-AA Illinois State. Truman and preseason No. 19 PSU return to the scene in 2003.

Network’s 1-AA poll and cracked the top 20 in the Street & Smith’s rating.

The MIAA schedule begins with the proverbial “monkey” on the ‘Dogs back as the Pittsburg State Gorillas invade Kirksville. Truman and preseason No. 19 PSU once again will battle in the ‘ville last year, giving fans another exciting contest, that included two Bulldog kickoff returns for TDS, but lost to Pitt 49-35 in the end.

In fact Truman’s first three MIAA contests include all but two of the ‘Dogs losses from last year with Washburn and Emporia next on the list. Emporia has also garnered preseason status as the 18th-ranked team in DII, according to Street & Smith’s.

Missouri Western and Missouri Southern precede two more preseason ranked teams in Central Missouri, ranked eighth, and the fourth-ranked Northwest Missouri Bearcats. Missouri-Rolla and Southwest Baptist will finish off the regular season schedule.
